POPULIST CONVENTION.

A Platform and Resolutions Are Adopted.

A STATE TICKET NOMINATED.

Middle-of-the-Road Men Carry the Day.

The Populist State Convention assembled a little before 12 o'clock yesterday. Less than thirty delegates gathered to solemnly consider the future destinies of the American people in general and of Nevada in particular. With bated breath the few spectators awaited the approaching deliberations of the statesmen who were to be admitted to seats within the sacred precincts.

The convention was called to order by J. B. McCullough, and without any pyrotechnic display or ground and lofty tumbling in the way of oratory, he stated that it was understood that this was the second State Convention of the People's party in Nevada and it was not necessary to make any extended remarks as the purpose for which it had been called was pretty well understood. As he said this he glanced at J. M. McCormack and Newt Richards and they seemed to acquiesce and he proceeded to add that it would now be in order to proceed with the temporary organization by the election of a temporary Chairman.

Mr. Wm. Dunn of Storey county was placed in nomination and was elected by acclamation. Upon assuming the chair Mr. Dunn briefly stated that he was not accustomed to presiding over such large bodies as State Conventions and that any short comings that might be guilty of would necessarily have to be excused.

J. C. Doughty was named as Secretary, but declined. Mr. Nagle of Douglas county was then chosen to act as Secretary and believing it was incumbent upon him to make an address of acceptance proceeded to deliver it. The Chair then named the Committee on Credentials consisting of Charles Steele of Storey, W. H. Coffey of Washoe, and H. C. Dangberg of Douglas. A recess of ten minutes was taken to give the Committee on Credentials an opportunity to make a report. At the call of order the report was presented and adopted. Eight counties were represented, there being twenty-two delegates and eight proxies. A Committee on Platform was then appointed, consisting of George E. Peckham, M. E. Carver and G. J. Brown, also a Committee on Permanent Organization consisting of Benj. Currier, H. Beck of Virginia, and H. C. Dangberg. The convention then took a recess until 2 o'clock.

When the convention reconvened the Committee on Permanent Organization and order of business reported as follows: Charles Steele of Storey to be permanent Chairman; E. C. Nagle of Douglas permanent Secretary. The order of business to be the nomination of three Presidential electors, a member of Congress, a Judge of the Supreme Court, one Regent for long and one for short term, and a Lieutenant Governor.

At this point came the first hitch. Mr. Chas. Steele positively declining the Chairmanship. For awhile it looked as if the convention would be without a Chairman, but finally Mr. Dunn accepted the place. Mr. Nagle then declined the Secretaryship and Mr. Frank Porter was chosen. Conspicuous in the audience were Allen C. Baagz, W. D. Phillips, Dr. Patterson, S. Summerfield and a few other gold men, and as certain points were made they could be seen to smile affectionately and look knowingly at each other in a self-satisfied manner as much as to say "that's water on our wheel" and the smile spread into broad grins when the middle-of-the-road men demonstrated their perfect control of the convention.

The following platform was read and adopted:

Your Committee on Platform submit the following declaration of principles:

1.—The representatives of the People's party of Nevada, in State Convention assembled, pledge their loyal and unflinching support to the nominees and platform of the People's party National Convention, and we reiterate with emphasis that the financial question is the paramount issue, and demand the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, and the demand as embodied in that platform, for Government ownership of railroads as the only just and correct solution of the transportation question.

2.—We are unalterably opposed to any extension of time for the payment of the debt owed by the Pacific railroads to the Government, and we demand on default of payment that the Government take the roads and operate them in the interest of the people.

3.—We denounce the placing of hides and wool on the free list, while leather and woolen goods remain highly protected, as a gross and atrocious act of class legislation, and we demand that the producer of raw material be given as much of the fostering care of the Government as is bestowed on the manufacturer, the sugar trust or any other combination.

4.—We demand that the so-called gold reserve be abolished, and the issue of bonds in time of peace be prohibited.

5.—Non-resident aliens should not be allowed to acquire real estate in this country, and borrowing money from foreign countries should be discouraged.

6.—Improved methods of production enables fewer hands to produce the prime necessities of life, but the demand for the pleasures and luxuries increase as fast as the financial ability of the people to supply them; hence when we see the squads and regiments of wheelmen riding over our dilapidated roads, while at the same time we see other regiments of unemployed men seeking in vain for work, we know that the only thing needed to remedy both evils is the Populist system of finance, and we invite all lovers of good roads and good times to join with us and assist in electing the true exponents of Populism.

7.—We favor a readjustment of the expenses of our State and county governments, to the end that our salaried officials will help the taxpayers to bear the burdens of the hard times now prevailing, and which will continue to prevail until we get some genuine Populist legislation at Washington.

8.—The Nevada State University is the pride of the State, and the selection of Regents should be made wholly in the interest of the University, regardless of politics, and the nominees for Regents should not be required to endorse the platform of any political party.

9.—We are emphatically in favor of Nevada men for Nevada offices, and believe that the men who have the welfare of Nevada at heart and whose homes and interests are in the State should control its politics.

10.—The seventeenth session of the Legislature of the State of Nevada having proposed and agreed to an Amendment of the Constitution of the State of Nevada, striking from Article II, Section 1, the word "male" wherever it occurs, so that the women of the State may be granted the same privileges of suffrage now enjoyed by men necessary that the Legislature of 1897, now to be elected, agree to said amendment before it can be submitted to the people for their consideration, we therefore favor the approval of the amendment and the submission of the same to the people for their final action. We favor this course because the referendum is one of the cardinal doctrines of the Populist party, and because we recognize that the question of female suffrage is an important social problem, upon which there is an honest difference of opinion among people of all political persuasions. We declare it to be the duty of legislative bodies to submit such questions to the people for their action, instead of arrogating to themselves the right to substitute their personal opinions or prejudices for that of the combined judgment of the masses.

GEORGE E. PECKHAM,

GEORGE J. BROWN,

M. M. CAVIN,

Committee on Platform.

In the original draft of the resolutions the reference to the free coinage of silver had been cunningly omitted. Some said it was done purposely by goldbug coaching, but this is probably a mistake. The Silverites, however, were on their feet and insisted that Section 1 should be amended so as to cover the financial question without equivocation.

When the section was read favoring Nevada men for Nevada offices, Briggs seemed to know what was coming and with uplifted hands was prepared to give the resolution hearty endorsement. Just then Congressman Newlands entered the hall and the delegates and spectators, believing that Mr. Briggs's signal was intended as a compliment to Mr. Newlands, joined heartily in the applause while the latter moved across the hall to a seat and the point that the goldbugs were so anxious to make was totally lost. Briggs's remarks at the fiasco were more emphatic than elegant.

The section regarding the choice of Regents for the University without regard to politics occasioned a lively debate. Mr. Magill argued that they, the same as other candidates, should be required to endorse the platform and show that they were Populists, and that regardless of what other conventions might do the Populist Convention should insist on their candidates being of their party.

Mr. McCormack thought differently and that the resolution should remain and that the office of Regent be a non-partisan one. Mr. Magill moved the resolution be rejected from the platform but upon a vote being taken the motion was lost.

The resolution favoring woman suffrage was the cause of a lively talk. Judge Currier moved to adopt the section and Mr. McCormack moved to amend by striking it from the platform, claiming that the States that had adopted woman suffrage such as Wyoming, Colorado, etc., were no purer politically than they were before, nor any better than other States.

Judge Currier eloquently championed the cause of woman and made a telling speech claiming that he some times believed it would be better to disfranchise the men and enfranchise the women and we would have a cleaner government. Mr. Currier was ably supported by Rev. T. Magill and B. F. Currier and the resolution was adopted.

The wild and bitter fight against the following preamble and resolution offered by B. F. Currier, showed the Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U.S. Gov't Report

finger marks of the gold men:

WHEREAS, We consider the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 the paramount issue of the campaign, and

WHEREAS, We favor the election of men pledged to support that issue for President and Vice President of the United States, be it therefore

Resolved, That we are in favor of inviting all parties in the State of Nevada pledged and supporting that issue to unite in a fusion with the People's party on Presidential Electors and invite all parties in favor of the election of W. J. Bryan for President of the United States to appoint a committee to confer with a like committee from this convention, effect a fusion on Presidential Electors if possible and pledge our nominees for Presidential Electors to abide by the action of the committee appointed by that body.

Messrs. Currier and Currier, Magill, McCormack and Doughty in a running debate enlivened the convention for some time, the first three ably advocating fusion, while Messrs. McCormack, McCormack and Doughty bitterly opposed it.

During the debate Judge Currier told how he and four others four years ago went to the Omaha Convention and made the best fight possible for the principles of the Populist party and had paid full fare while the late delegates to the St. Louis Convention had probably traveled at reduced rates.

He claimed that for the last year the affairs of the party had been conducted in secret by a few self-appointed representatives of the party. He was opposed to such action and believed that the business of the Populist party should be conducted openly and above board. He was satisfied that the Democrats would accept the nominees of the People's party for elector and also that the Silver party would do the same. He emphatically condemned secret sessions of the party and hoped that the convention would favor fusion and Bryan.

B. F. Currier said that he was in favor of Bryan, but not Sewall, and Watson was his choice for Vice President. He was in favor of Bryan because he believed him to be a Populist and he didn't believe in doing what might give the common enemy of the State, McKinley, the electoral vote of Nevada. He claimed that if the electoral ticket could be nominated as provided in the resolution, McKinley would not have the support of what would make a respectable corporate guard.

Doughty arose and painfully tried to explain that fusion might be a good thing on the basis proposed, but did not seem to him fair and insisted on a middle-of-the-road straight up and clean-out electoral ticket for Bryan and Watson, and he thought to do otherwise would simply mean defeat. He wanted no fusion and did not propose to place Watson in the position of hanging to the tail of the Democratic ass.

McCormack caught the cue from Doughty and howled middle-of-the-road and jumped on the proposition of fusion with both feet. McCormack said that he must brace the boys up so he came in with the middle-of-the-road war whoop.

B. F. Currier made one more attempt and insisted that they were giving nothing away, but in order to carry the issue of silver, which he considered greater than Bryan or anybody else, he believed it was the proper thing for the People's party to join those who were working for the same end.

Mr. Magill made a splendid talk in favor of fusion, the freedom of the ballot and liberty.

A vote was now taken on the resolution and it was rejected.

A motion to take a recess was voted down and the nominations proceeded with the following result:

For Presidential Electors—Geo. E. Peckham of Washoe, Chas. Steele of Douglas, and H. C. Dangberg of Douglas. J. C. Doughty was named for Congress. B. F. Currier was nominated for Supreme Judge. Rev. T. Magill for Regent for long term. The nominations for Regent for short term and Lieutenant Governor were passed.

J. M. McCormack and J. B. McCormack of Washoe, Wm. Dunn and M. E. Cavin of Storey, and C. F. Henningson were named as an executive committee with power to fill vacancies on the ticket. The convention adjourned sine die.

It was announced last evening that B. F. Currier would decline the nomination for Supreme Judge.

He Lost His Dinner.

Nine men were sitting in front of the Grand Central hotel yesterday, and it was proposed to take a vote to ascertain how they stood politically. The poll resulted in eight votes for Bryan and one for McKinley. The solitary adherent of the gold trust proposed that they poll the passers-by, and if it resulted in 16 to 1 he would go without his dinner as a punishment for being such a muggins. Accordingly the next eight men who went by were questioned as to their preference for President and all responded "William J. Bryan," and the gold man went hungry.

SOME LEAP YEAR LAWS.
A Woman Could Propose Six Hundred
Years Ago and the Man Had to Accept.
In two countries, at least, and more than 600 years ago, laws were passed which gave women the right of proposing marriage. These enactments went even farther than this. They also stipulated that if the man whose hand they had sought should refuse he should incur a heavy fine.
A searcher among the ancient records of Scotland has recently discovered an act of the Scottish parliament, which was passed in the year 1283, which runs as follows:
"It is statut and ordaind that during the reign of his most blisful Megeste, ilk for the years knowne as Lepe Ye are, ilk mayden ladye of bathe highe and lowe estat shall have liberte to bespeke yo man she likes, albeit gif he refuse to take hu to be his lawful wyfe, he shall be mulcted in ye sum of an hundred or less, as his estat may be, except and awys gif he can make it appere that he is lecherat and ous ther woman, he then shall be free."
A year or two later a law almost similar to the Scottish enactment was passed in France and received the approval of the King. It is also said that Columbus sailed on his famous voyage to the westward a similar privilege was granted to the maidens of Genova and Florence.
There is no record extant of any fines imposed under the conditions of this French law, and no trace of statistics regarding the number of spinsters who took advantage of it or of the similar regulations in France, but the custom is said to have taken firm hold upon the people and about that time the "Lovers' Courtship" which was published in London in 1608. In this quaint work the "privilege" is thus alluded to:
"If a man now becomes a part of the French law, he is bound to social relations of life, that, as often as every leap year, he must return the ladyes have the privilege of making love either by words or lockes, no man will be entitled to benefit of clergy who doth in any way treat her precept with slight or contumely."
Up to within a century ago it was one of the unwritten laws of leap year that a man should decline a proposal he would soften the disappointment which his answer would bring about by the presentation of a silk dress to the unsuccessful suitor for his hand.
A curious leap year superstition is still to be met with in some parts of New England, and that is that during leap year the "beans grow on the wrong side of the pod."—Philadelphia Examiner.
Not Inviting More Collisions.
"No, sir," said the man who had wavered. "I won't learn to ride a bicycle. I have thoughts of trying it, but I have just heard of a peculiar trait in the machine that caused me to change my mind."
"What is that?"
"I understand that when you first try to ride, if you see anything you especially wish to avoid, you're almost certain to run into it."
"There's a good deal of truth in it."
"Well, that settles the wheel for me.
I have enough trouble with bull collectors as it is."—Washington Star Advertising.
"Isn't it awfully annoying to be near-sighted?" asked the man who delights in personal questions.
"If you are, it is as I am," answered the other, "I am near-sighted."
"And little I have to say," he said, "under the name of a near-sighted man, you would have to be a near-sighted
man."—Greenwich Languist

A Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Times reports the tragical adventures—tragic and comical—of an Ohio miser, one of those belated simpletons who have no faith in savings banks and hoard their money in an old stocking or in some other equally secure receptacle. This man buried his treasure in the ground.
Some time afterward he dug it up to look at it, and to his dismay found that the notes had begun to decompose and were already almost beyond recognition.
In great alarm he emptied the mass—
almost $20,000—out of the glass jar into a pillow case, fastened that about his body next to the skin, and started for Washington.
There he presented himself at the treasury, and after some delay, caused by his unwillingness to trust the treasury in any one else's hands, the staff was turned over to the ladies of the redemption division, who finally succeeded in identifying about $19,000, or all but about $400 of the full amount.
Payment was offered the man in the form of a draft, but he would have nothing to do with drafts. He wanted the bills, and of course they were paid him.
It seems that he felt really grateful to the ladies who had done the work of identification, for he sent them the next day a newspaper full of grapes, together with the following original poem:
Since the ladies are skillfully at work
Counting the money,
Wish to say to them truly I am none
To such any one else's honey
Performing no laborious task,
Will kindly accept of a small gift to eat.
It is said that he was afterward told of the whole $19,000.
The Cause of Old Maids.
The professor of natural science at one of the Scotch universities was discussing the process of fertilizing plants by means of insects carrying pollen from one plant to another, and told them, after Darwin, that the old maids were the ultimate cause of it all.
The bumblebees carry the pollen, the field mice eat the bumblebees. Therefore the more field mice the fewer bumblebees, and the less pollen and variation of plant. But it is a devil field mice and old maids protect each other. Therefore the more old maids the more field mice, the more field mice the more bumblebees, and the more bumblebees the more old maids are the cause of it all.
The professor an inquiring student, with a single exclamation, his tongue rolled up at the bottom, asked and asked:
"If a lady, professor, what is the cause
—the old maids, don't you know?"
"The present breed of young men," replied the professor sharply and without a moment's hesitation.
There was silence in the room for the space of 30 seconds, after which the lecture was resumed.—London Answers.
